

“Only the pure with good in their soul have the power and magic to see me as whole.”

~ The Unicorn

This happy-go-lucky little Bear cub loves to explore! One day he follows a butterfly into the dark woods where he sees a curious sight and a shimmering light. A beautiful white horse needs help and this tiny young bear hurries to save him. What follows is a magically inspirational tale of what can happen if you follow your heart, have good in your soul, and do good deeds.

Award Winning Author Kathleen J. Shields wrote this story when she was ten years old. Highly edited since then, the last three stanzas haven't changed in 34 years! With a highly creative imagination, Shields' used her love of unicorns, Care Bears and magic to share a story that illustrates the innocence of a child. This story was one that stuck with her father for three decades. He encouraged her to publish 'Unibear' often but she was never able to find the "right" illustrator, until now. Three years to the date of her father's passing, Kathleen released this book in honor of him. It's stellar start helped make a "Sad Day into a Glad Day."
